ENAV SUSTAINS BRAZILIAN AIRPORTS

Garbini: we proudly continue to export Italian know-how

ENAV, the Italian Air Navigation Service Provider and SINEAA, the association of Brazilian airports, have signed a three year memorandum of understanding aimed, on the whole, at guaranteeing evolution in the Brazilian aircraft sector.

The agreement specifically calls for ENAV to give support to SINEAA in the field of air navigation services for airport operations, with the aim of developing procedures and infrastructures to increase airport capacity in response to the growing demand of air traffic while maintaining elevated standards of safety.

ENAV will also assist SINEAA in putting together a business strategy and all activities connected to increasing both economic and environmental performance with the aim of satisfying the needs of airline companies.

We are extremely satisfied that also Brazil identifies us as a strategic partner – Massimo Garbini CEO of ENAV declared. This agreement is only the first step towards building future business relationships not only with Brazil but also with other South American countries. An achievement like this in a country which is growing rapidly and will also host the Olympic games in two years time presents a big opportunity for ENAV. We will proudly continue to export Italian know-how.
